

Crows Nest Reserve Invaded by Fire Demon Tuesday Night

Prompt Action by Forestry Officials Minimizes Damages. Crews Rushed to Fires West of Coleman Head Off Menace. York Creek District Has Big Blaze. Heavy Rains Needed for Safety

Summary of forest fires in Coleman district:

First fire spotted at 6.30 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 25, by Ranger Boulton about two miles east and south of Star Creek ranch. Fire was seen from highway four miles west of town as he was driving from Corbin, where he had been surveying the progress of fires in the vicinity of that town.

First call for fire-fighters made immediately on arrival in town, and Salvador's truck with 15 men taken to scene to confine fire if possible. Fire was blazing fiercely, consuming second growth timber, stumps and fallen dead timber.

Foreman Greene placed in charge of this fire.

At 9 p.m. second crew of 15 men taken out to fire about half a mile northwest of first fire; immediately got to work with A. E. Knowles as foreman. This fire not as large as first, and by 1 a.m. Wednesday was considered safe from further danger.

Camp kitchen was established at a point between these fires, in old McLaren Co. buildings, and supplies for feeding men were on hand and coffee boiling shortly after 11 p.m. Tuesday, with George Maflin as cook, assisted by Herb Snowdon.

Men were served lunch at 1 a.m. Wednesday morning at 5 a.m. men called out previous night were relieved by fresh crews recruited from Blairmore and Coleman, and at 7 a.m. 50 men of International Coal Co. were ordered out to fight fire in York Creek area, which had developed to an alarming extent after midnight.

Pumps and equipment were brought in from Pincher Creek during night to York Creek. J. P. Alexander, supervisor of Crows Nest forest reserve, arrived in fire area at 10.30 p.m. Tuesday and remained in touch with all scenes of action, he and Ranger Boulton being continually on duty through out the night.

Heavy showers during the night of Wednesday have lessened very considerably the danger, though flames still are to be seen and the burned over area will smoulder for a long time, so that constant vigilance will be necessary. About 50 men were on guard during the night, and watch will be maintained day and night for an indefinite period, by a force of men sufficiently strong to deal with fresh outbreaks should they occur.

Forestry Officials Prompt Action Commended

A word of praise is due officials of Crows Nest forest reserve for efficient handling of the fire outbreaks in this district. Men were mobilized and equipment rushed to the fires in a very short time over difficult roads, truck owners answering the summons immediately they were called. By 11 p.m. the first camp kitchen was established and lunches were ready for the fire fighters, with plenty of substantial food. Ranger Boulton had everything well prepared for the emergency. Supervisor Alexander arrived from Pincher Creek as quickly as possible after the outbreak was telephoned, and immediately ordered additional fire fighting equipment from Pincher. For 24 hours without any let-up he and Ranger Boulton were continually inspecting the various scenes of action, seeing that work was effectively carried on. Sergeant Jones and the men of his detachment were on duty throughout the night and helped greatly in raising crews and transporting them from town east, to Coleman.

Blairmore 7, Coleman 5

Coleman and Blairmore baseball teams played a good game on Thursday last, the visitors winning by a score of 7-5. Kirkofsky and Evans for Blairmore and Kapalka and W. Gate for Coleman were the batteries. Blairmore secured an early lead of two runs, which was evened in the third. In the fifth Coleman gained two, through a long hit into left field by Jonty Atkinson, giving him a home run and letting in two other men, which put them in the lead. Blairmore scored three in the sixth which Coleman was unable to overcome. Ole Olson and Angelo Gentile umpired. Ole called the game on account of darkness, but the players decided to play it out to a finish. It was a good game and the fans enjoyed it. Quite a number of the hockey players of both towns were playing.

Seven Million People Homeless And Destitute In Chinese Flood Areas

Hankow, China.—Relief was rushed to the flooded Yangtze River Valley Sunday, August 23, but with the knowledge that many more thousands will die before any measures can prove effective for the homeless, starving and pestilence-ridden millions.

Careful surveys reveal that at least 1,600 persons are dying each day in the district which centres around Wuchang, Hanyang and Hankow. Sixty thousand square miles of Hupeh and Hunan provinces are covered by water five to 20 feet deep. Seven million people were homeless and destitute in those provinces.

It was a physical impossibility to estimate the number of deaths, but there was little doubt they would reach 2,000,000 in Hupeh and Hunan provinces before the floods abate and ravages of disease and famine end.

The situation in more remote districts farther away was unknown, but it was certain many more deaths would be added to the total resulting from the greatest catastrophe which has struck China.

In Hankow the situation in native sections was appalling. Hundreds of thousands, destitute, with their little homes covered by the swirling waters, were starving. As they succumbed to hunger or disease their bodies were thrown into the Yangtze together with dead dogs, donkeys and horses. It was impossible to dispose of the bodies otherwise.

Some measures of relief was afforded Sunday, August 23, but no announcement that the flood level appeared stationary. A survey party reported the Han River, one of the contributing factors to the Yangtze flood, was falling.

Relief Takers Must Work

Unemployed Who Turn Down Job Will Receive No Consideration

Ottawa, Ont.—Unemployed men who turn down an offer of work will receive no further consideration from the Provincial or Federal governments, Senator G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labour, announces.

Senator Robertson said: "If and when men are known definitely to have declined employment, the Provincial and Federal governments may feel properly their obligations have been discharged. Men who refuse employment, which would provide them with safe surroundings, wholesome food, shelter and a modest compensation will not merit further sympathy or consideration by the state."

Unfavourable Trade Balance

Imports For Canada During Year More Than Exports

Ottawa, Ont.—Sharp declines in exports and imports marked the 12-month period ending July 31, according to a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Imports amounted to $783,105,000, compared with $1,147,032,000 for the corresponding period in 1930. Exports totalled $714,389,000, in comparison to $1,015,777,000 last year. This represented an unfavourable trade balance—preponderance of imports over exports of $59,011,000.

Duty collected in this period totalled $137,781,000, compared with $181,048,000 for the previous year.

Ready For Test Shipment

All Facilities At Churchill In Readiness For Grain Boats

The Pas, Man.—Except for the final touches, Churchill today is ready to handle the 500,000 bushel test shipment of grain that will pass through The Pas starting September 4, C. S. Growl, chief engineer of the construction department of the Canadian National Railways, announced Wednesday, August 19, upon his return from an inspection at Churchill. The most modern elevator on the continent will find no difficulty in handling the grain, the C.N.R. executive declared. The 500 cars of grain will be unloaded from the tracks at the rate of one every two minutes. Three special locomotives will be brought in to aid in bringing the grain from here to the new bay port, 512 miles north of here. All the grain is being brought from the pool elevator at Saskatoon.

All grain will be stored in the 2,500,000 bushel elevator by September 15. The two tramp steamers will reach Churchill between September 15 and September 20. There will be no other boat engaged in shipping the grain from Churchill.

All the docking facilities are not completed and only one boat can be loaded at a time, although the dockage provides for two ships. The bay line is in first class condition for the haul. Welsh coal is the principal cargo being brought into Churchill by the two tramp steamers engaged in the hauling.

Radium Ore Shipment

Twenty Tons In Transit From Great Bear Lake

Vancouver, B.C.—A special despatch to The Province from Port Smith, N.W.T., says:

"First commercial shipment of radium ore from Great Bear Lake, where experts predict that Canada is making a bid for the radium supply of the world, has arrived here on its way to railroad at Waterways, Alberta. The shipment consists of 20 tons of picked ore and is estimated to be worth as high as $8,000 a ton and is making its way south via the historic water route. Many transshipments are necessary to land the ore at railroad.

"All mining parties in the far north are preparing to fly out when winter closes the season. Only caretakers will be left on the locations. The companies are already looking ahead to next year. Large supplies of gasoline, oil and food are being cached at strategic points and will serve when planes carry men and machinery into the north in March next year. The scale of these preparations indicate that next year will see greatly increased activity."

Wheat Bonus To Be Distributed Direct To Growers Of Wheat

Winnipeg, Man.—Between $6,000,000 and $8,000,000 will be distributed directly to growers of wheat in the three prairie provinces as a result of the Federal Government bonus of five cents a bushel, according to an estimate made by E. B. Ramsay, chairman of the Board of Grain Commissioners, who Thursday, August 20, announced details of the bonus administration.

Forty members of the civil service eligible list, or former employees of the Department of the Interior, will be installed in an office here to check up bonus receipts with cash grain tickets throughout the west. The clerical office will be managed by the chief accountant of the Board of Grain Commissioners, with the auditors, to be appointed, assisting.

The bonus, Mr. Ramsay pointed out, "is for growing wheat—not for owning it. The man who grows the wheat gets the money whether he owns the grain or not, or regardless of whether he grows it for someone else." The only exception will be the man on the farm who is paid wages in money, or partly in money and partly by share of the crop. Should he get wages entirely through crop sharing, the bonus of five cents a bushel goes directly to him.

Regulations stipulate that "no person, shall assign any claim to any bonus, and no person shall accept any such assignment. No person who is authorized by these regulations to issue a bonus certificate shall recognize or act upon any order or direction authorizing payment or delivery of the bonus certificate to any person other than the grower."

Arrangements have been made with elevator companies, truck buyers, buyers, commission merchants and grain dealers to issue bonus certificates on "street" wheat or "graded storage" wheat, while wheat in carload lots will be settled for after official inspection of the grain.

These bonus certificates must bear on the back the declaration of the grower that the wheat was grown in the year 1931, and in the provinces of Manitoba, Alberta, or Saskatchewan. When this has been done the certificate can be taken to any chartered bank and turned into cash free of charge. No stamp duty will be levied on these vouchers.

A wrong declaration on grain delivered makes the grower liable to punishment under the criminal code.

Administration of the act covering the five-cent bonus is in the hands of the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada, and E. B. Ramsay, chairman of the board, announces that he is negotiating for office space.

A staff of 40 will handle the work of issuing and checking certificates. Between two and three millions of these certificates will probably be required. It is expected two or three experienced grain men will be added to the staff.

Harvesting Operations In West Proceeding Under Ideal Conditions

Wheat Crop Estimate

Wheat Pool States Crop On August 15, Was 51 Per Cent. Of Normal

Winnipeg, Man.—Western Canada's wheat crop is in poorer condition this month compared with July, according to the crop report of the Canadian wheat pool. The pool states that the wheat crop on August 15 was 51 per cent. of normal compared to 52 per cent. on July 15. On August 15, 1930, the report continues, the wheat crop was 68 per cent. of normal.

The report figures that 67 per cent. of the wheat in Manitoba will grade No. one and two northern, 28 per cent. No. three and five per cent. No. four and lower.

Saskatchewan wheat crop remains stationary regarding conditions compared with last month. The pool reports that on August 15, the crop was 42 per cent. of normal, the same figure that prevailed around the end of July. Last year in August it was 66 per cent. of normal. Only 288 points reported sufficient moisture, the remainder of the 453 places heard from being in need of rain, 12 affected by grasshoppers, 14 injured by light frost. Forty points reported complete crop failures. The report continues that estimates 70 per cent. of the wheat will grade one and two northern, 28 per cent. three northern and four per cent. four and lower.

Alberta displays the rosy picture of the prairie wheat lands, reporting its crop at 49 per cent. of normal compared with 70 per cent. a year ago. Grasshoppers affected six districts, light frost struck 23, while 64 points complain of the crop being heavy, green and late. Nine areas were injured by hail, the report states. Only 55 per cent. of the wheat, however, is expected to grade one and two northern. Moisture has been sufficient except in the south.

Canada Contributes Practically One-Third Of World's Wheat Shipments

Ottawa, Ont.—Despite rigorous competition and several adverse world factors, Canada contributed practically one-third of the world's wheat shipments during the 12 months ending July 31 last. In a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics it was stated: "Canadian participation in the world's wheat trade during the past crop year cannot but be regarded with satisfaction."

Faced with stiff competition from Russia and the Argentine in the European market and with the Oriental market captured largely by Australia through depreciated currency, Canada last year exported 228,480,403 bushels of wheat and 6,701,863 barrels of flour. This was the equivalent of 238,637,887 bushels, actually exported, an increase of 72,370,675 bushels over the 1929-30 crop. A decrease over, however, from the last five-year average of 308,893,540 bushels.

Canadian wheat exports were divided almost equally between eastern and western routes. Shipments from the Pacific Coast ports totalled 74,541,806 bushels, while exports through Atlantic gateways, including re-routed wheat from United States, amounted to 74,022,561 bushels. The balance of the wheat movement was through United States ports.

Commenting on world wheat conditions last year, the bureau reported listed four outstanding factors. World shipments of wheat and flour aggregated 787,000,000 bushels, compared to 612,000,000 in 1928, 928,000,000 in 1928, and 782,000,000 bushels for the five-year period 1925 to 1929.

The return of Russia as an exporter of wheat was the chief development of the crop year. Another was the withdrawal of United States from the export market. A third factor was the monetary situation developed in the Argentine and Australia from depreciation of currency. The German financial crisis in the closing months of the crop year created an element of uncertainty throughout Europe which was reflected in a reduced volume of international trade.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

As expected, the forest reserves have been closed until further notice. The action of the forestry department will be approved, no matter how irksome it may be to fishing enthusiasts. Cattle and feed in the foothill ranges deserve protection, which careless campers who leave fires in the woods never think of. Leaving live camp fires should be treated as a criminal offence and the penalty should be imprisonment without the option of a fine. If a man sets fire to another's house, he is charged with arson. If a man through neglect sets fire to the forest, isn't the offence deserving of the same penalty? There are plenty of signs to warn people of the danger.

Advocates of free trade believe that industry of all kinds should be developed along lines that make it unnecessary to ask for government protection of any kind. They are correct. Tariffs and other artificial aids to business may give temporary relief to favored industries, but present economical conditions serve to show that these aids do not accomplish the purpose aimed at. The worker has to sell his labor in competition with the whole world, while industries which profit by his labor often seek government assistance.

It is the great masses of workers, comprising over 90 per cent. of the consumers, who bear the burden of artificial aids to all industries. Sales, custom or excise taxes are paid, not by the manufacturer, not by the middlemen; but by the customer who buys the finished product for his personal use, no matter if it be a suit of clothes or a packet of puffed grain. The system might be worked indefinitely. Farmers clamor for aid. They are given a bonus of five cents a bushel on wheat. In one district of Saskatchewan a farmers' organization circulated a petition asking the provincial government to give them an advance of $2.00 per acre on every acre prepared for crop in 1932.

They were justified quite as much as an industry asking the Federal treasury to subsidize it. But it does not minimize the evil. If we were all given protection in our various lines of work, what a happy condition we would live in, whereby the inefficient would enjoy benefits at the expense of the people at large. Yet that is what Federal aid to any industry means. Selfishness and the desire to accumulate without honest effort is largely responsible for the hoarding or accumulating of 90 per cent. of the nation's wealth in the hands of about 4 per cent. of the population. That's why granaries are filled while people are in want. The money to purchase is not in circulation, though it still exists in just as equal volume as prior to the depression. Whilst such conditions prevail, discontent is bound to increase, and the workers will clamor for reform. The common principles of Christianity have been ignored. "Big business" men tell the people to pray sincerely. If prayer will bring about a change whereby the wealth of the nation will be more equally distributed—whereby the masses will get an even break with the "big interests," then we might be well advised to pray without ceasing.

Railroad companies built their own tracks. They laid their rails through virgin country, which they helped very largely in developing. The Canadian Pacific fifty years ago took a bold step, and has done more for Canadian development and binding the provinces together than any other agency.

Motor busses and trucks appear in recent years, cutting up the highways, and playing havoc with the railroads and local draymen in the towns they serve. As taxes are levied on local draymen or other carriers, the same law should apply to trucks and busses which compete with local men or railroad companies. If bus and truck companies had to build their own tracks as the railroads had to—the chances are they would not be doing business.

Fire-fighting calls for co-operation on the part of the public. This was evident in the emergency this week, and it was pleasing to note that in most cases men willingly volunteered. The forests belong to the people; it is their duty to protect them.

Will Meet at Waterton

Leaving the Club Room of St. Paul's United church at 6.30 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 28, the Young People's League will hike to the McGillivray ranch, where they will be joined by the Y. P. League of Blairmore for a weiner roast and a good time of fellowship together. If through any oversight you have not received any other invitation please accept this as your invitation. Mr. Larke requests the Journal to state that we have at no time had a complete list of the young people so that some no doubt did not receive an invitation, but we want you just the same. Bring a cheerful countenance and twenty-five cents to pay for the rolls and hot dogs. Send in your name to Jean Hughes, Winnifred Dunlop or Belle Flynn by Thursday evening.

Prize winners for last Sunday's competition were Eric Gudmundson, heaviest basket; J. Kovak, second prize for biggest basket; Jenkins, biggest speckled, 1 1/2 oz.; M. Fleming, biggest grayling.

The next competition takes place on Sunday, Aug. 29, place not decided. Names must be handed to the secretary or president not later than Friday evening.

More Competition

Robert Simpson is now a competitor in the field for national advertising. A combined magazine and catalogue will be issued every two months to replace the semi-annual catalogues. A page of advertising will cost in one color (black) $3400.00; in four colors; $5,000.00. $36.00 for a page of advertising in The Journal looks easy compared to that.

Plate engraved visiting business cards may be obtained at The Journal office. 16 samples of neat engraved types to choose from. If you have plates already, leave your orders here for printing at city prices. Prices on request.

There is business to be done every day of the year, and the most persistent will usually get the most business. As a long distance race is won by the fellow with the most endurance, so does a man win in business by overcoming fears and boldly meeting each day with a determination to carry on as usual.

MUST MAKE THE EFFORT
Business comes to those who ask for it through effective advertising. People are buying all the time—something—somewhere, and it is the enterprising merchants who are selling them. Brush aside that old notion that everything comes to he who waits. You get what you work for.

Great Strides Have Been Made In Recent Years In Fruit Growing In The Three Prairie Provinces

Canada's prairie West is still known as a new country. It is not surprising, for despite cities and skyscrapers, railways, roads, water power, telephones, electricity, universities, hospitals, churches, opera houses, packing plants, palatial hotels, factories, motor cars, oil wells, grain crops and live stock, it is not likely for some time yet to be known as anything else.

The reason, of course, is that only within a comparatively recent period have these attributes of civilization come to the Canadian prairies, and to discover all the resources and potentialities of so vast a territory as that which lies between the Great Lakes and the Rockies is a matter for years of study and exploration. For example, there is oil. Calgary had its beginning in 1875 in the establishment of its present site beside the Bow River, in the North West Mounted Police fort, but it is only some seven years since the first great well, the Royalite No. 4, was brought in from the now famous Turner Valley field 40 miles away, where there are a dozen or more wells with outputs averaging probably that of the Marvellous No. 4, and the production from Turner Valley approximates annually 1,500,000 barrels of gasoline and oil. Royalite No. 4 was the first well of commercial consequence to be drilled in any part of the Canadian West.

Even these figures are dwarfed by the estimated oil content of the so-called "tar sands" of the Athabasca, which have hardly begun to be exploited—fifty billion barrels according to the calculation of Government engineers and geologists recently made public, the largest known deposit of fuel oil in the world and enough to last the present rate of consumption to meet its demands for 500 years. But it is land, not oil, that attracts the first settlers to a new country. Their primary concern is to acquire holdings, a quarter-section, homes, the best first livings and ultimately competences from their new-fledged fertile acres. Capital follows, providing luxuries and conveniences as settlement gains the means of purchasing them and seeking fresh avenues for profitable investment—mines, timber, oil, railways, public utilities. Resources other than the land are uncovered and turned to service in the further development of the country. In time most things of human value have been discovered and utilized and the country is then no longer "young."

The Canadian West has not yet reached that stage in its progress. Time is required even for full acquaintance of what the land itself is capable of producing. Grain and live stock are naturally the first consideration, for these two products with the vegetable garden will afford the settler the chief essentials—wholesome and abundant food. Later he will come to consider other possible products that would lend agreeable variety to his bill of fare and among these is fruit. It has often been assumed that fruit cannot be produced on the prairies. The idea is a mistaken one. Almost any pioneer who has settled along the tree and shrubbery-bordered lakes and streams could certify that in such localities there is annually an abundance of wild fruit. Of this, raspberries, strawberries, gooseberries, black currants, saskatoons, cherries and highbush cranberries are most common. The muskeg territory north of the North Saskatchewan produces great crops of a small lowbush cranberry which in the form of sauce and preserves is counted of excellent flavour. In the spruce and scrub lands of certain localities immense quantities of succulent blueberries are harvested each year. Sections of Manitoba furnish regular crops of delectable wild red plums.

Pioneer settlers have been content, for the most part, to make use of these native wild fruits so prodigally provided and domestic production has been generally deferred. But in late years they have been turning to the possibilities in fruit growing on their own lands with gratifying results. The success of Mr. A. P. Stevenson of southern Manitoba, for example, in the production of apples has opened the eyes of others to what may be accomplished in this field. The Government Experimental Farm at Morden, Manitoba, too, has been growing apples for a number of years and hundreds of boxes from the orchards of Mr. Stevenson and the latter institution have found their way to market.

North of the Athabasca River, at Athabasca—which is 100 miles north of the Alberta capital, Edmonton—Mr. Gauthier has been growing raspberries successfully for a considerable period.

In 1850 he had seven acres in cane. He began with a small patch of an experiment and has since increased his acreage until he now has this large area in the fruit. Not that the field is prolific. Mr. Gauthier's method has been to set out fresh ground as the earlier plantings deteriorated. He finds a ready sale at good prices in the town of Athabasca for all the berries he can produce.

The territory about Lesser Slave Lake is peculiarly adapted to the growing of strawberries, which require plenty of moisture. The land in many places is flat and little above water level, so that strawberry culture in that section has proved a remarkable success, and the district has become locally famous for the production of the fruit. Passenger trains of the Northern Alberta Railways are able in season to buy luscious fresh strawberries at the little stations and towns along the line and many cases are disposed of annually over the counters of the departmental stores in Edmonton.

Ten years ago Mr. Herbert Lawrence and his wife started a nursery in the western outskirts of Edmonton overlooking the Saskatchewan. They are now growing successfully plums, crab-apples, currants, rhubarb of enormous size, and great quantities of asparagus, for which there is a never-failing demand in the city. The plums—of which Mrs. Lawrence last season put up 50 quarts for their own use—are of a dwarf variety, but of exceptional flavour. The main part of their income is derived from the nursery stock—trees, shrubs, flowering plants, rhubarb and asparagus—but they sell each year at some $400 worth of various fruits. Winter protection is given by the Lawrences to any of their stock and little if any is ever watered by the proprietors of Buena Vista Gardens.

A member of the staff of Saskatchewan University in a recent talk to a Saskatoon convention stated that plenty of fine fruit for home consumption, including strawberries, raspberries, currants, cherries, plums and crabs, might be grown on the farms of the province provided shelter, proper selection of varieties and methods of planting, care and cultivation were followed. At Lethbridge and Medicine Hat considerable success has attended experiments in apple-growing.

Strawberries, raspberries, currants—black, red and white—native cherries, plums and crab-apples are now to be found in many gardens of Saskatchewan and the other Prairie Provinces, and it is not unreasonable to assume that before many more years they will be growing a large proportion of the fruit consumed in that territory.—W. B. Cameron in Agricultural and Industrial Progress in Canada.

Peace River Country

Declined To Become Great Agricultural District, Says English

The Peace River country is destined to become one of the greatest developments agriculturally and commercially which the world has ever known was the statement made by the late Henry Harper, daughter of Miss Elizabeth Harper, daughter of Emily Harper, of Banbury, England, during the course of an address to the members of the welfare committee of the Montreal Women's Club recently.

Miss Harper, who is on her fourth visit to Canada, serves in an honorary capacity as councillor of the Society for the Overseas Settlement of British Women. Her visits to the outlying parts of this country are all made at her own expense.

Miss Harper believes that with a short line of railway from the valley of the Peace to the Pacific Coast and the return of normal economic conditions the Peace River country will be the mecca of settlers.

There was a great need, however, for doctors and nurses, she said, and one of the human problems was that of saving the mothers.

In addition to its farming facilities and its great beauty, Miss Harper pointed out that the Peace River district had such a wealth of coal, and oil that its canyon had been called a future Pittsburgh.

Future settlers would do well to take less acreage than those who settled the 3,000 family farms, Miss Harper said. She advocated a minimum loan of $2,700 being set instead of the former loans, which ranged from $3,900 to $5,000. A payment of $200 to $400 yearly is required in the latter, she said, and while people are breaking land it is impossible for them to spare these amounts.

Most Northerly Police Post
Government Steamer Succeeds In Making Annual Trip To Back Peninsula

Battling its way through the seas of the northern Arctic, the sturdy Canadian Government steamer "Beothic" has again succeeded in making its annual trip to Back Peninsula, most northerly police post in the world. Delayed messages reached the Department of Interior from Major L. T. Burwash, eminent Canadian explorer who is this year making his first journey to the "Beothic" as officer in charge of the patrol.

Leaving Godhavn, Greenland, August 7, the vessel reached the Royal Canadian Mounted Police post at Cape Sabine, August 10. The two Mounted Police officers who carry out the patrol to the rear of the Arctic and who see members of their own race only once a year, came down to the shore, exchanged greetings with members of the crew and received supplies.

On its downward journey the vessel will visit Chesterfield Inlet before proceeding through Hudson Strait and along the coast of Labrador back to St. Lawrence ports.

Women and Sport
Days Are Gone When Athletic Girl Was Called a Tom-Boy

Where is the tom-boy of yesterday? The word is heard no more nowadays, and perhaps has fallen out of American speech. In the old days any girl who took part in sports would have been precariously dubbed "tom-boy," and distinct sniffs would have been heard from her more decorous sisters who were always "littie ladies."

Now golf and tennis tournaments bring out the girl competitors, those who would have been called "tom-boys" in the days of their sheltered grandmothers. Today, the representative of the fair sex in natty sports attire, smashes them across the net or steps up to the tee, takes a swing, drives down the fairway. And there are suburban youths and successful business men in every gallery who would give the shirts off their backs if they could do likewise.

What has become of the tom-boy of yesterday? The answer is, they are all tom-boys. The day seems to have gone forever when it was unladylike for women to be competent in a sport.

Negotiations Are Under Way For A Trade Treaty Between Canada And South Africa

Farmers Should Not Burn Straw Stacks

May Be Required For Feed In Brought Areas

"Without first ascertaining whether they are going to be needed either for shipment to the drought areas or for use on the farms where the feed is grown, straw stacks should not be burned this year," Hon. W. C. Buckle, Minister of Agriculture, declared recently.

Referring to the general situation, the Minister said: "It may prove necessary to ship horses into districts where there is a surplus of feed in order that they may winter at a small cost to their owners and be shipped back in the spring. Under climatic conditions such as obtain in western Canada, it is good business to carry over a surplus of fodder from year to year and the experience of the last three years should teach us to be careful about burning up fodder which may prove to be very useful before another crop is harvested."

Under the government-assisted scheme of moving cattle from dry areas where fodder shortage exists to districts where pasturage is available, a total of 157 carloads had been moved to August 12, the minister stated. Approximately 2,000 head of cattle, 1,500 horses and 500 sheep had been moved to pasturage at that date.

SIR ALAN TRIES OUT POSSIBILITIES OF GIANT SEAPLANE

Sir Alan Cobham, one of England's greatest aviators, who is credited with having done more to systematize commercial passenger air services than any other aviator, has just left England on a 7,000-mile flight to Africa, to try out the possibilities of the biggest float seaplane in the world as a commercial long-distance passenger plane. The main picture above shows the giant float "Valenta" seaplane, weighing ten tons, receiving its last overhauling before commencing the long trip. Inset shows Sir Alan Cobham (extreme right), with some of the people responsible for the design and construction of the machine.

Commission Finds That Important Progress Has Been Made

"We found that the best results in cancer treatment were being obtained where surgical, X-ray and radium treatment were being combined, and we also found that remarkable steps have been made in cancer research," said Dr. W. T. Connell, who has just returned from Europe, where he was studying the cancer question with the Ontario cancer commission, appointed by the government of Ontario. A comprehensive survey of the cancer question and the treatments being used was made by the commission in both the United States and Europe.

"What the commission saw was most encouraging," said Dr. Connell. "We found from our investigations that where an organized movement was made to secure for the patient the three methods of treatment, surgical, X-ray and radium, the best results were secured, and the highest percentage of recoveries was recorded."

Manitoba Unemployed

Over Half Of Those Out Of Work Are Living In Winnipeg

Unemployed persons in Manitoba total 40,817, according to a careful survey of the province that has just been concluded by the provincial government with the aid of city, municipal, town and village authorities.

It is estimated that including dependents of unemployed the number of persons in the province without means of support is 105,000.

This information was obtained at the request of the Dominion government which wanted to know the number of unemployed and their location before allocating funds for relief projects. It does not include farmers who have suffered crop failures.

Hon. W. R. Clubb, Director of Unemployment relief, has sent full details on the situation to Hon. Gideon Robertson, Federal Minister of Labour.

The total of unemployed for Winnipeg and its suburbs was found to be 20,767, an increase of 2,767 over the number of unemployed in June of this year.

Arthur MacNamara, assistant director of unemployment relief, estimated that the normal number of employed in a population of 270,000 in Winnipeg and suburbs is 70,000. Of that number over 20,000 now are out of work.

The total number of persons in Greater Winnipeg, including unemployed and their dependents, without means of livelihood is estimated to be 50,000 at the present time.

The other figures on unemployed sent to Ottawa show a total of 2,486 unemployed for St. Boniface, Brandon and Portage la Prairie; 4,033 for the towns and villages of the province, and 13,531 for the rural municipalities.

Figures on unemployed were sent to the provincial government by the secretary-treasurer of each city, town, village and municipality in the province.—Manitoba Free Press.

Strange Cave Dwellers

People In Tundra Live Underground To Escape Heat

Tundras has perhaps the strangest cave dwellers in the world. They are found south of Gables on the fringe of the desert, and in their efforts to escape the heat they have dug dwellings for themselves in the sand.

The traveller crossing the plain of Matmata comes across what appear to be wells, and is surprised to hear sounds of talking and children's laughter coming up from the earth. Looking down, he discovers in the half light a small courtyard, and tunnelled from the bottom of the well-like cavity are complete dwellings.

Access to these underground dwellings is through a slowly descending tunnel, and when the habitation proper is reached it is found to be beautifully clean and cool. Down below the surface lives the whole family, and there are stables for their animals.

Encouraging Report On Inspection Of Wheat

Grain Passed Through Department In Winnipeg Of Exceptionally High Quality

"Grain which has passed through the inspection department at Winnipeg is of exceptionally high quality. A considerable amount has been graded No. 1 Hard, a great deal has gone No. 1 Northern, and some has graded No. 2 Northern on account of mixtures of durum and barley, but this year's crop, as far as it has reached the inspection department is of an exceptionally high standard."

This was the statement made to officials of the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference by J. D. Fraser, chief grain inspector, Winnipeg, with reference to the quality of cars of the 1931 crop from western Canada, which have already passed through the inspection department at Winnipeg.

Mr. Fraser stated that the grain thus inspected had come from many different parts of the prairie provinces and indicated that the 1931 crop is of much higher quality than expected. Despite adverse conditions from spring seeding to harvest western Canada this year has produced, as far as present signs go, a quality of exceptionally high average.

This year's crop, therefore, was taken to indicate that many excellent samples of grain would be available for entry in the competitive classes of the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference to be held at Regina next year.

Death Of Toronto Publisher

Chas. Riddon, Late President Of Toronto Mail & Empire, Dies In Montreal

Charles Riddon, who built up the Riddon pulp and paper mills and was president of the Toronto Daily Mail and its successor, the Mail and Empire, for 50 years, died at his home in Montreal recently, aged 84.

From 1863, when as a lad of 15 he joined his brother, John Riddon, in building a paper mill at Merriton, Ont., Mr. Riddon was intimately connected with the pulp and paper industry of Canada until a few years ago, when his company was sold to the Canadian International Paper and Paper Company.

In 1877 he bought the Toronto Daily Mail, and Mr. Riddon remained its president until its sale in 1927, a period of 50 years, during which time he was a strong supporter of the Conservative party and an important factor in the establishment of the national policy under Sir John Macdonald in 1878.

The Empire newspaper was bought in 1891, the two forming the Toronto Mail and Empire.

Banked Savings In Canada

Couple From United States Thought It Was Safe

A despatch from St. Thomas, Ontario, tells of a young couple from the United States who recently visited that city and who brought with them their entire savings and deposited it in one of the banks at St. Thomas. The young couple admitted quite frankly that they had lost some of their savings in one bank failure in Pontiac, Mich., and had grave fears for the balance of their nest egg—hence they had brought it to Canada.

While the Canadian banks perhaps have a lot to answer for, we in Canada perhaps do not appreciate them as much as we should during periods of depression. Over on the other side of the line the number of bank failures this year has been appalling and the heavy losses among private citizens has been staggering in many centres.

Here in Canada a bank failure is a very rare thing, and anyone placing savings in one of our chartered banks, Government savings offices or loan companies, is practically sure of the return of his money.

Old Resident Dead

Winnipeg's oldest resident, Mrs. Mary Roberts, 84, is dead. She had lived there for 87 years, going to Old Fort Gary when she said there were "hardly any white people there—just Indians and the Hudson's Bay folks." She was the mother of 13 children, one of whom fought in the Riel rebellion.

Explanations and Comments

The Return To Antioch From Jerusalem, 12:25.—Barnabas and Paul had been to Jerusalem to bring money from the church at Antioch to the brethren there who were suffering from famine, and on their return John Mark was with them, probably as their attendant.

The Leaders At Antioch, 13:1.—In the flourishing church at Antioch there were numerous prophets and teachers, men of special inspiration. Among these was the energetic and lovable Barnabas of Cyprus. Others included Symeon the Black—doubtless Arrian; Lucius of Cyrene (the province in North Africa lying next to Egypt), who perhaps was one of the Cyprian evangelists who established this church at Antioch (Acts 11:20); Manaen—another form of the Hebrew Menahem (2 Kings 15:14)—who was the "foster-brother" of Herod the Tetrarch (Herod Antipas, son of Herod the Great), and was seemingly a person of some social importance; and, finally, Paul of Tarsus. Apparently the historical mention of Paul's place, at the end of the list, to be emphatic just as was Barnabas at the beginning of the roll.

The First Foreign Missionaries Chosen and Ordained, 13:2, 3.—While the church, under the leadership of these five men, was carrying on its services of worship, prayer and fasting, an advance movement was initiated under the direction of God.

When he said the prayer of the church was "awaiting upon God for special guidance on a matter already occupying their thought; this matter was surely the question of a forward movement into the Roman Empire." Paul and Barnabas, indeed, may have been thinking of this question, when they had brought with them from Jerusalem John Mark.

"Wherever and wherever men and women are unitedly spiritual, prayerful, self-denying, carefully taught in waiting truth and waiting upon the Spirit of God for His guidance in a matter of profound importance to His people, then and there the scene is laid for a mighty Christian enterprise to have its auspicious beginning or to advance it."

The First Foreign Missionary Work In Cyprus, 13:4, 5.—Under orders of being sent forth by the Spirit—"Barnabas and Paul set out on their forward journey back to that obedience of the Spirit which was their life. They went down the River Orontes to Seleucia, the seaport of Antioch, sixteen miles distant, and there sailed for the island of Cyprus in the Mediterranean Sea."

"Historically this is the precise moment at which the foreign missionary enterprise actually began. The fact that we are Christians ourselves, born back to that obedience of the Spirit which was their life. They took the little tree of Christianity and transplanted it from the cramping flower-pot of Judaism into the soil of humanity of the whole world. It is an apparently tiny act which, in simple fact, when looked at down the perspective of the centuries, is seen to have changed the history of the world."—Basil Matthews.

The First Battle-Royal With Paganism, 13:12.—At Paphos, on the west coast of the island, Paul and Barnabas met the proconsul, Sergius Paulus, a man of understanding, and with him a sorcerer, a Jew named Barjesus, or Elymas, as he was called in Greek. It is interesting that the inscription has been found in which Sergius Paulus is expressly named as holding the office of proconsul. We know that magicians of all kinds were favourably received in Roman society, and it is in no way remarkable that one of these should have gained an influence with the proconsul.

Educational Films

Talkies Introduced To Students At Summer School

The "canned professor" has been introduced to the students of the summer school of Washington University in St. Louis. In a darkened hall, he appeared on the screen. With him were the charts used in his lecture. He pointed to them as he talked. Here was an educational talkie in literal sense. Given the "canned professor," the syndicated professor may follow. One man may appear simultaneously at 1,000 summer schools. The possibilities are limitless. Few examples, with the chain grocery store, may yet have the chain college, "canned professors" appearing on the silver sheet as they appeared before the camera at the central lecture room of the chain—Boston Transcript.

Grower Receives Bounty

Tenant Farmer Will Receive the Full Five Cent Bonus

Farmers who grow wheat on land leased on a crop share basis will receive the Federal five-cent-bushel bonus on wheat in exactly the same manner as actual owner-producers. Promise of this was contained in a letter received at Saskatoon by Dr. William Allen, of the farm management department at the university, from Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture.

The Federal Minister of Agriculture was answering a query as to whether the tenant farmer would receive the full five cents or only a part of the bounty, with a share going towards the owner of the land. He said the government intended to make certain the actual grower received the bounty.

Increased Postage

United States Boosts Postage On Letters To Canada and Newfoundland

Increase of postage on letters to Canada and Newfoundland from two cents an ounce to three cents, and on postcards from one cent to two cents was announced at Washington by Second Assistant Postmaster-General W. Irving Glover, to become effective September 1.

At the same time air mail postage to Canada will be increased from five cents to six for the first ounce and ten cents for each additional ounce.

Would Extend Irrigation

He moved away, while Angela threw her husband a look of dread. He put a hand on her shoulder.

"Steady," he said quietly, "that's over. Everything's all right."

He might have been reassuring a frightened child. With a sense of rebellion Angela realized it, and realized also that he could calm her when she could no one else. It made her suddenly furious that she should be dependent on James Halliday for anything.

She glanced at Nick, who, gazing across the water, was apparently oblivious of the storm which was brewing behind him. How tall, and straight, and handsome he was, she thought. And how impossible she had found it to make the sort of impression on him that she had made so easily on others. What was the thing that kept kept her at arm's length from him? That kiss should have finished him! Never before had Angela offered her lips without an invitation.

She breathed deeply, so deeply that her husband glanced at her. She was thinking: "It was the hurricane that made the trouble. It drove me out of my mind, just as I was making an impression. Everything is against me—always has been. Why on earth did those silly Ashley men go to kill themselves? It wasn't my fault; yet Jim blamed me—holds it over me like a whip whenever I look at another man. I can see his eyes now—the way they looked when that horrid maid rushed in with the news of the suicides. They burned me like hot coals. Is he so perfect that he can't see me like that? Oh, if I could make him suffer a small part of what I suffered then, but—"

Nick turned. He had evidently been thinking to some purpose as he gazed out to sea. "Angela," he said quietly, "there's something I want to ask you before I leave the boat tomorrow morning. This is a good time as any, I suppose. Would you mind telling me if you had this letter before you came to Kingston to ask me to go on the cruise?"

He had taken a sheet of crumpled paper from his pocket and handed it to her.

Halliday's glance was puzzled.

Angela took the paper and smoothed it out. She was thinking: "It must have dropped out of my pocket when I was walking." She said, a trifle scornfully: "Are you in the habit of reading other people's mail?"

If she expected the taunt to hurt, she was disappointed. Nick met her eyes unflinching.

"When a man finds an open letter on an uninhabited island, and at first glance sees the superhuman face, and I think, he is superhuman if he didn't read it. Remember too, that the letter had no beginning and no end. Until I read it I could hardly return it to the owner. After I read it, I knew, of course, who the owner was. What I ask you is—did you know it was my duty to go home when you urged me to take this trip?"

"Duty?"

She shrugged in a way that stirred Nick's anger, but he said quietly: "I think duty's the right word, though I shouldn't have thought of it as a duty, had I known I was needed."

"Needed?" She raised her eyebrows. Her tone was tantalizing. "Needed in what way?"

"If it's not in you to understand," Nick began hotly, but she interrupted him.

"Perhaps it's not. I never had a child. My husband, you see, prefers to pick his children out of the gutter."

"Angela," warned Halliday, his voice like steel.

"Did you have that letter before you urged me to go?" Nick persisted doggedly, unmindful of Halliday's warning glance.

Angela arose, and faced him. Halliday too, arose, as if fearful of some explosion, his anxious eyes on her face.

"Angela," he said again, "be careful. This is no place for a scene. Don't lose your temper."

"Temper!" The warning came too late. "Be careful what you say, and you catch me," you virtuous married men. Look here, Nick Hastings, you act like a prosecuting attorney but if you'd stop and ask yourself a few questions—ask your wife what she secret from you as if it were something shameful—you'll have her things in a twinkling. That ridiculous letter, from Julie Nipps. You're innocent as a baby, but you won't be innocent when I'm through with you. I—"

"Stop!" commanded Halliday sternly. "Do you want the whole ship to hear? Stop at once, and think what your temper has cost before. Remember the Ashley's. It was because you were angry with me that you kept him out all night. Think—"

She turned on him furiously.

"Oh, I've thought, and thought, and thought, and I've seen things that never meant me see. You confess now, you hypocrite. You'll tell me, Hastings why you've been sneaking back to Bakersville every week, pretending that you went to see that little gutter-snipe. You'll tell him why you went at a time of day when he'd be busy at the bank. You'll tell him how crazy you are about his precious wife—and you'll tell who's the father of that baby that's coming in September. You—"

"Take that back!"

Nick was facing her—his eyes a black—his finger pointing straight at her in a way that looked to her suddenly terrified eyes, as deadly as the barrel of an automatic. In one sickening moment she realized that her temper had run away with her again—and that she had gone too far. Panic was already seizing her, as Nick repeated, with a deadly quietness that was more stirring than her own rage:

"Take that back! If you weren't a woman I'd throw you to the sharks. Go below. Go now. And stay there until I've left this boat."

For a moment Angela paused, literally frozen with surprise. Then, strangely, she who had never obeyed anything but her own will, turned and fled. One look she cast behind, but he met Nick's furious eyes, and that she had gone too far. Panic was already seizing her, as Nick repeated, with a deadly quietness that was more stirring than her own rage:

"No, my friend—she gave you the right."

Halliday's voice was queer, and cracked, and lifeless. He had to clear his throat before he added: "Sit down, Hastings. I can't stand up. These are the things that come something out of me that I can't get back; and this—there has never been anything like this. As to that hideous accusation of Mrs. Halliday's—"

"Don't speak of it—ever again."

Nick's voice was hoarse. He was shaking from head to foot.

"Do you think I don't trust my wife? Do you think I'd demean her by listening to an explanation? Do you think that I don't trust you, Halliday—that I've forgotten that you asked me no questions that dreadful time when Mrs. Halliday and I were out all night? And do you think for a minute that even should you tell me it were true, I would believe you? If you do—you don't know Gay."

His eyes met Halliday's, and the older man saw there something he had seen but once before, on the night when Gay had said, lifting her own wonderful eyes to him: "No harm will ever come to your wife through Nick. Mr. Halliday. Whatever happens it won't be—that."

Trust—that was it. Complete and abiding trust. To few is it given, perhaps. To James Halliday the sight of the knowledge that such a thing existed, had changed and beautified a world that had been a place of bitterness and grief. For a moment he closed his eyes, seeing Gay's face in the moonlight, as he had seen it the night before he came away—feeling again the soft touch of her bands against his lips. He arose wearily, drawing a deep breath. He seemed suddenly to have aged, and his voice shook."

"We have brought you nothing but trouble, Hastings. We bring trouble to everyone we touch."

He turned with dragging step and went below, looking down at Angela, who lay huddled in her berth. Her back was toward him, and she made no sign to show her knowledge of his presence; but Halliday knew, from her related attitude, that the storm was over.

He stooped, laying a hand upon her shoulder—that steady hand which, unknown to herself, she had grown to depend on in times like this. When he spoke, his words brought to the listening woman a sense of intolerable desolation.

"Angela," he said, so gently that she knew there was no anger—only sorrow behind the words, "I have said, I think, a fair measure of patience all these years; but there's a limit, you know, to the things one can forget, and—and forgive—and go on living with. You overstepped that limit when, knowing me as you do, you accused me of any such dastardly affair. I think I fear—that we have reached the parting of the ways."

She sprang up, for once unmindful of her rumpled gown—her disheveled hair. She grasped his hand, clutching at it in fear—holding it against her breast with trembling fingers. "No—not you! Don't mean that, Jim. You can't mean that! What—what should I do alone?"

It was the first time she had ever voiced her need of him, yet it left him cold. Quietly, gently, Halliday unclasped the fingers that held his hand, and turning, went out and closed the door.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

On the day that Nick arrived in Bakersville, John Maxwell was at the train to meet him; yet the first familiar face Nick saw was that of old Sam Tod, the baggage man, who had known him since childhood, and who gripped his hand with a hearty: "Glad to see you back, boy. Thought for a while you was in a watery grave."

"Not yet," said Nick, and laughed; but, even as he turned to meet John Maxwell's welcoming smile, it struck him as strange that old Tod had not joined in the laugh. Tod was a proverbial joker, but there was something unusual in his eyes today: a look that seemed not wholly gay for Nick, but—sorry; and the same quality was in John Maxwell's smile. It was distinctly a smile with reservations—just sort of smile that sometimes precedes the telling of bad news. It brought a chill to Nick's heart—dimmed the sunshine—filled him with foreboding; yet he did not speak till he was in the Maxwell automobile. Then he went straight to the point.

"What's wrong, Mr. Maxwell?" John Maxwell started. The question was plainly unexpected.

"Why—nothing, my boy; nothing that isn't going to come out all right—I know it will come right now you've got Gay."

"Don't beat about the bush, sir. Has something happened to Gay?"

"No—no! That is—well, you have a little daughter, Nick—born too soon, but Bennett says she's coming along nicely. We're not worrying about her; but Gay—she's been under a terrible strain, and when the message came—we don't know how because it wasn't opened—but she got the idea that the news was bad. She fainted. When she came to she was delirious. She's been so ever since."

Nick's face grew slowly white.

"You don't mean—you're not trying to tell me that—that she's lost her mind?"

"No, we don't say that. She knows the children. Dr. Bennett took them in yesterday to test her. But she has babies on continually about you. She evidently kept things to herself too much on the baby's account, and is paying for it now. She's had horrible visions of what was happening to you. They haunt her. When we tell her you're safe she swells, it's pitiful. She thinks we're deceiving her and begs us not to. Bennett was going to meet you and explain it all better than I can; but he was called on an emergency case and had to go. You're our one big hope, Nick. The sight of you may blow away the cobwebs, if—if she knows you."

"You mean—she may not know me?"

John Maxwell's hand closed on Nick's and gripped it hard.

"There's that possibility, of course; but she knew the children. Buck up, boy. I'm sure she'll know you! She loves you so dearly, Nick. How can she help?"

He took out a handkerchief and blew his nose. Nick said, his voice husky: "Where are the kiddies?"

"Mary's got 'em. Had 'em ever since Gay was taken sick. Jane's at your house doing the cooking. That girl Sam Bartlett hired is laid up, just when they need her most. Julie Nipps is helping out, too. Mary's been keeping little Martha daytimes, so she'd be free. We'd have had the boys here to welcome you, but we didn't want them to hear about their mother. You see, Nick, Gay's tried so hard to keep them happy—not to let them guess that you might not be coming back at all, that we felt we mustn't undo her work. They're happy as the day is long, and proud as Punch of their little sister. If they'd an idea you were here today wild horses couldn't have kept them away from the train. Here we are. There's old Bartlett. He's been a wonder."

As Nick walked up the wide, brick path beside John Maxwell, he felt dazed, and unsteady on his feet. It was all so hideously different from what he'd planned. Uncle Sam, an obviously aged Uncle Sam, but with the same kindly light in his blue eyes, gripped his hand, patted his shoulder, and said, "You're the one thing Nick would care to hear: 'She's asleepin', boy. Havin' a real good nap. The doctor just called up and said you was to go in and set beside her till she wakes. He thinks maybe the sight o' you'll be a real good thing, will be just what she needs. The baby's a girl, Nick. Gay'll be real happy when she knows it. Now' (the old man's voice trembled), "now she's set right to sleepin'."

Nick dropped his suitcase and sat down on a bench, his head against the wall. He felt vaguely that he couldn't stand up. His throat burned.

"Could—could I have a drink of water?"

"I'll get it," said John Maxwell. He returned in a moment with an ice-cold drink, and said, "You're an affectionate son of Nick's arm."

"Don't worry too much, Nick. She'll be all right now you've got home. I just know it. She's been so wonderfully brave that she couldn't stand it a minute longer, but everything will be all right now."

"You always were an optimist," said Nick. He tried to smile, but the attempt was painful. "May I go up now, Jane?"

She nodded, and led the way. As they reached the threshold of the familiar room, Nick paused, breathing deeply. The shades were lowered and for a moment he could not see, but he knew that a nurse who had been seated by the bed, arose, and with a whispered word to Jane, went downstairs. Dr. Bennett had given her his card.

Nick felt curiously dazed and numb. Jane saw it, and slipping a kind hand in his, drew him toward a chair beside the bed.

He was alone then—alone with Gay. He leaned closer though his eyes had already become accustomed to the dimness. She lay on her side, facing him, her breast rising and falling gently as she slept. There was a soft little curl lying against her forehead. Nick remembered seeing it the day he went away—that raw, cold day that seemed a century ago.

"Dearest!" he said.

Not to save his soul could he have kept back the word. Gay moved, turned her head a little, and threw out a slender arm. She did not waken, but she was there.

Doctors Warn Against Drastic Purgatives

Physicians know the danger of using cheap cathartics that create a harsh, unnatural intestinal activity. They know that E.C.'s "Fruit Salt" is more than a laxative. It is a delicious health beverage that sweetens and tones up the entire system—and that its daily use—just a dash in a glass of water, every morning—is an aid to vigorous good health.

Little Helps For This Week

"Perfect love casteth out fear."—1 John iv. 18.

Ah, soul! look upwards trusting, kiss the rod.

And know there is no night have been with God.

From Him, whenever lowly we draw

We learn of love that casteth out all fear.

We find a faith that in oblivion's sea, Whimsies every dread and doubt eternally.

To love our neighbour is a great help to that perfect love of God which casteth out all fear. Nothing but the love of God will make you love your neighbours aright; and the Spirit of God, which alone gives weight for any good, will by these loves—which are life—strengthen you at last to believe in the light, even in the midst of darkness.—George MacDonald.

Soviet Icebreaker Finds Unrecorded Islands in Far North

Despatches from the Soviet Icebreaker "Malgin," reported the discovery August 7 of four hitherto unrecorded islands in the far north region of the Franz Josef Archipelago.

Southwest of Karl Alexander Island the exploring vessel had charted three unknown islands at 81.12 north latitude, 30.55 east longitude. The fourth is described as a small, hilly bit of land in the Straits of Baxa. They will be formally claimed in the name of Soviet Russia in the near future by the Arctic Institute, which will name them.

A sob trembled on her lips. Her eyes filled. She seemed to be looking beyond him, out of the window and into the branches of the maple. He was forgotten.

"A little girl! Nick wanted a little girl; but—but she has come—too late."

Despair flooded Nick's heart. She looked so frail—almost unearthly; and those eyes—they were not Gay's eyes.

"Dear, don't you believe me?—Don't you know me?" he pleaded desperately.

She tried to smile, as if not to hurt him.

It took away the Pain

I HAVE been married for ten years. I had one child who would be seven years old now if it had lived.

"My husband and I are both very fond of children. A neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have been taking it for about two months. It took away the pain I used to suffer and I am getting well and strong."

BANK CREDIT FOR BINDER TWINE

Premier Brownlee when in Ottawa discussed with the Dominion Government and the Banks the question of credit being made available to farmers where necessary for the purpose of purchasing binder twine. Arising out of the conference at Ottawa, the banks having superintendents in Alberta discussed with Premier Brownlee on August 11th the question of credits for this purpose, and as a result the GOVERNMENT WOULD ADVISE ALL FARMERS REQUIRING BINDER TWINE TO MAKE APPLICATION TO THEIR BANKS FOR CREDIT FOR THAT PURPOSE, EVEN IF AN UNSUCCESSFUL APPLICATION HAS ALREADY BEEN MADE.

It is important that applications be made immediately.

ISSUED BY THE GOVERNMENT OF THE PROVINCE OF ALBERTA FOR THE INFORMATION OF THE PEOPLE OF THE PROVINCE.
